- (b) “D” means the daily rated capacity of a major process of a mine;
- (c) “N” means the number of days in a year during which a major process of a mine may reasonably be expected to operate.

(2) Annual productive capacity is the lowest value of R, where R is calculated for each of the three major processes of a mine, according to the following formula:

$$R = \frac{D \times N}{C}.$$

(3) Repealed. 24 Dec 2010 SR 125/2010 s4.

(4) In determining annual productive capacity, the annual operating time of each element of each major process is the difference between:

- (a) 365; and
- (b) the total of:
 - (i) a reasonable number of days during the year for scheduled summer or other shutdowns for holiday purposes, including public holidays within the meaning of The Labour Standards Act;
 - (ii) a reasonable number of days during the year for major equipment overhauls;
 - (iii) a reasonable number of days during the year for scheduled maintenance; and
 - (iv) a reasonable allowance for unscheduled down-time of each major process;

without regard to stoppages caused by labour disputes, fires, floods or other similar events.

(5) The reasonableness of any estimate used in the calculation of annual productive capacity of a mine is to be measured against the actual operating experience of the mine, disregarding the effects of market factors, but taking into account the type and condition of existing mining machinery, the grade, type and location of the ore and other similar factors.

Base payment holiday – application and qualification

10.1(1) In this section and section 10.2, “approved” means approved by the minister in a prior written approval given for the purposes of subsection (3).

(2) Subject to subsections (3) to (6) and to section 10.2, a producer may qualify for a reduction in base payment with respect to production from:

- (a) an expansion in the productive capacity of an existing mine, if that expansion commences on or after January 1, 2005; or
- (b) the development of a new mine, if the beginning of commercial production for that new mine is on or after January 1, 2005.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), a producer qualifies for the reduction in base payment only if:

- (a) the expansion in productive capacity of an existing mine or the development of the new mine has been approved; and
- (b) in the case of an expansion in the productive capacity of an existing mine, the increase in the annual productive capacity qualifies the expansion as a mine expansion.

(4) If a producer has applied for and received approval for a mine expansion of an existing mine or the development of a new mine and the producer subsequently makes adjustments to operations of that mine that have the effect of further increasing the productive capacity of the mine by amounts that would not qualify as a mine expansion, those further increases in productive capacity resulting from the adjustments:

- (a) are deemed to be a part of the productive capacity that is associated with the prior approved mine expansion or new mine; and
- (b) qualify for a reduction in base payment in the same manner and for the original period as production from the prior approved mine expansion or new mine.

(5) For the purpose of determining whether or not new mines and mine expansions qualify for the reduction in base payment, the producer shall deliver to the minister a written certificate stating:

- (a) for each occasion that the producer applies for approval of a mine expansion, the productive capacity of the mine as of the date of the application;
- (b) for each occasion that the producer receives approval of a mine expansion, the productive capacity of the mine following completion of the expansion; and
- (c) for each new mine developed by the producer, the productive capacity of the mine after the beginning of commercial production.

- (6) The certificate of productive capacity specified in subsection (5) must be:
- (a) consistent with the methodology provided for calculating annual productive capacity as set out in section 3;
 - (b) either:
 - (i) provided by a firm of professional engineers, as defined in The Engineering and Geoscience Professions Act, acceptable to the minister; or
 - (ii) if the new mine or mine expansion must be approved by the Board of Directors of the producer or an affiliate of the producer, provided and certified by an authorized officer or director of the producer or an affiliate of the producer in a manner that the estimates are consistent with the estimates contained in the documents used for the purpose of obtaining the Board of Director's approval for the new mine or mine expansion;
 - (c) in the case of a certificate mentioned in clause (5)(a), provided to the minister with the application for the approval of the mine expansion;
 - (d) in the case of a certificate mentioned in clause (5)(b), provided to the minister within one year after the completion of the mine expansion; and
 - (e) in the case of a certificate mentioned in clause (5)(c), provided to the minister within one year after the beginning of commercial production.

Base payment holiday – calculation of amounts

10.2(1) Subject to subsections (2) to (7), for each mine of the producer that qualifies for reduction in base payment pursuant to section 10.1 and this section, the following production from that mine in the year is not subject to base payment, and is to be used to reduce the quantity of potash subject to base payment as set out in section 11:

- (a) in the case of a new mine, all production from the mine after the date that the new mine has been approved; or
 - (b) in the case of a mine expansion, any production in excess of the mine's productive capacity, as at the date of the application for the mine expansion, as established in the certificate provided pursuant to clauses 10.1(5)(a) and (6)(c).
- (2) A producer may reduce its base payment in accordance with subsection (1) during the period:
- (a) with respect to a mine expansion:
 - (i) commencing on January 1 of the year following the year in which the mine expansion is approved by the minister; and
 - (ii) ending on December 31 of the tenth year following the year in which the mine expansion is approved by the minister; and

- (b) with respect to a new mine:
 - (i) commencing on January 1 of the year following the year in which the new mine is approved by the minister; and
 - (ii) ending on December 31 of the tenth year following the year in which the new mine is approved by the minister.
- (3) A producer that applies for and receives approval for a subsequent mine expansion that qualifies for a reduction in base payment pursuant to section 10.1 and this section is eligible to reduce its base payment for that subsequent mine expansion in accordance with this section.
- (4) For the purposes of subsection (3), the quantity of potash that is to be used to reduce the producer's base payment is equal to the positive difference, if any, between:
 - (a) production in the year from the mine; and
 - (b) the mine's productive capacity, as at the date of the application for the subsequent mine expansion, as established in the certificate provided pursuant to clauses 10.1(5)(a) and (6)(c).

 - (a) commencing on January 1 of the year in which the mine expansion is approved by the minister; and
 - (b) ending on December 31 of the ninth year following the year in which the mine expansion is approved by the minister.
- (7) If, pursuant to subsections (3) and (4), a producer is granted a reduction in base payment for a subsequent mine expansion and the producer has already been granted a reduction in base payment pursuant to section 10.1 and this section with respect to a previous mine expansion or a new mine, the reduction in the quantity of potash subject to base payment for the previous mine expansion or new mine is to be revised and is equal to:
 - (a) in the case of previous reductions in base payment granted for expansions to an existing mine the positive difference, if any, between:
 - (i) the lesser of:
 - (A) production in the year from the mine; and
 - (B) the mine's productive capacity, as at the date of the application for the subsequent mine expansion, as established in the certificate provided pursuant to clauses 10.1(5)(a) and (6)(c); and

(ii) the mine's productive capacity, as at the date of the application for the mine expansion preceding the subsequent mine expansion, as established in the certificate provided pursuant to clauses 10.1(5)(a) and (6)(c) for the preceding mine expansion; or

(b) in the case of previous reductions in base payment granted to a new mine, the annual production at the mine that is less than or equal to the productive capacity of the new mine, as at the date of the application for the first approved expansion to the new mine, as established in the certificate provided pursuant to clauses 10.1(5)(a) and (6)(c).
