MINISTRY PLAN FOR 2010-11

Statement from the Minister

I am pleased to present the Plan for the Ministry of Corrections, Public Safety and Policing for the upcoming year, which is in alignment with Government's direction for 2010-11.

Inside the pages of this Plan, you will see a focus on the safety and security of Saskatchewan citizens. Our intentions are made tangible with strategies and actions dealing with crime reduction; offender rehabilitation; effective supervision and security of offenders; enhanced municipal capacity for emergency management, building and fire safety; and, licensing, inspection and safety standards for boilers, pressure vessels, elevators, and amusement rides.

I accept responsibility for furthering Government's commitments while ensuring the Ministry is managed with integrity and professionalism, with a commitment to Government's corporate values and principles. Examining programs and services to ensure the most effective and efficient delivery possible is a key priority for all ministries and an activity that will be reported on as results are achieved.

I will report on the progress made toward this Plan, within the financial parameters provided to my Ministry, in the Ministry's annual report.

*The Honourable D.F. (Yogi) Huyghebaert
Minister of Corrections, Public Safety and Policing*

Response to Government Direction

Ministry Plans for 2010-11 align with Government's vision for a secure and prosperous Saskatchewan, leading the country in economic and population growth, while providing opportunity for a high quality of life for all. Government's vision, goals, and priorities for the upcoming year are described in the *Government Direction for 2010-11: Balanced. Forward-Looking. Responsible.

Government's Plan and Budget for 2010-11 are about finding balance: responsibly managing expenditures, ensuring a solid revenue base, minimizing debt levels, and ensuring everyone can benefit from the province's economic prosperity.

To maintain the province's economic momentum, steps need to be taken to slow the growth in government expenditures. Direction has been provided to ministries to find ways to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of government's programs and services, and to ensure the best use of public funds. Efforts will focus on responsible financial management and innovative solutions to improve services to the public while reducing government's overall footprint.

Similar to the ministry plans presented last year, the Plan for 2010-11 communicates a high-level framework for the Ministry's key activities and identifies how the Ministry works to support Government's goals and priorities.

Mission Statement

The Ministry's mission is to work in partnership with communities to advance the safety and security of citizens who live, work, and visit in Saskatchewan through effective:

- policing services and enforcement programs that meet the needs of all residents and communities in Saskatchewan;

Performance Measures

Measure

Baseline / Trend Line Information

Percentage of police-reported incidents cleared by charge or cleared otherwise

Source: CCJS Crime Statistics, Canada, Provinces and Territories 1997-2008

Measure Description

The proportion of incidents that are cleared by charge or otherwise (clearance rate) is generally accepted as an important measure of effective policing. Clearance rates indicate the proportion of incidents that have been solved. “Clearance by charge” means a suspect has been identified and a charge laid. “Clearance otherwise” means a suspect has been identified and no charge laid for a variety of reasons (e.g., diplomatic immunity; complainant refuses to testify). Investigations for more serious or complex crimes may take longer to complete.

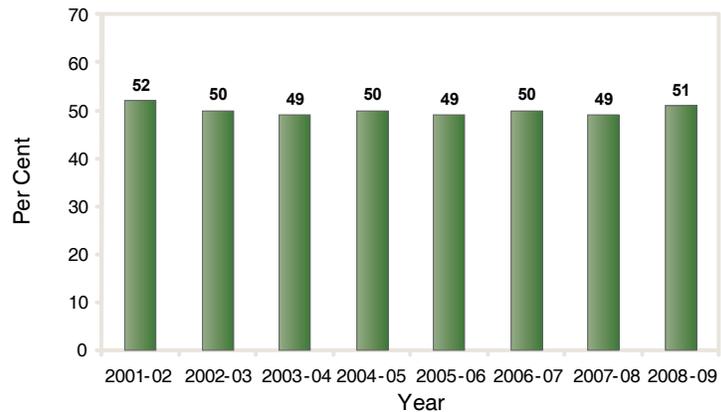

Since 2001, Saskatchewan’s clearance rates have continued to increase to a high of 57 per cent in 2008. The clearance rate across Canada has remained relatively stable over this time period, ranging from a low of 36 per cent to a high of 41 per cent.

While the measure is one indicator of the Ministry’s progress in reducing crime through effective enforcement and responses to offending, the Ministry has limited influence over these results. While the Ministry provides funding to police services and indicates its priorities, it does not prescribe the day-to-day operations of police services.

Measure

Baseline / Trend Line Information

Percentage of sentenced offenders not re-admitted to any adult correctional program within 24 months of completing custody

Source: Adult Corrections Information Management System

Measure Description

Research shows that correctional programs that target the needs of offenders and that are delivered in a manner that matches the learning style of the offenders can reduce subsequent re-offending behaviour. The percentage of offenders who have completed custody and were not re-admitted to any correctional program within 24 months is one indicator of program effectiveness.

It should be noted that Adult Corrections provides services for offenders with sentences of less than two years. The graph thus does not include those offenders whose sentences are two years or longer and have served in federal correctional facilities.

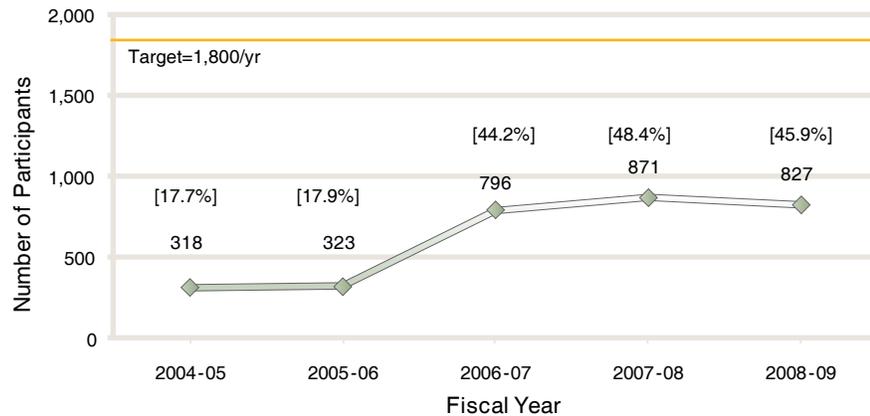

Rehabilitative programming is a key component of the Ministry's approach to reducing re-offending behaviour. Elements of the rehabilitative approach include addressing the main criminogenic factors that contribute to re-offending behaviour, including poverty, education, family and interpersonal violence, and addictions.

In 2008-09, the percentage of sentenced offenders not re-admitted to any adult correctional program within 24 months of completing custody was 51 per cent. The percentage has remained relatively stable since 2001-02. It is important to recognize that in adult correctional facilities more than 74 per cent of offenders are categorized as high-risk to re-offend. At the same time, Saskatchewan's crime rate and in particular, the rate of violent crime remains high. Offender counts in adult facilities have also continued to rise, increasing the pool of high-risk offenders. These factors all contribute to an environment that presents significant challenges to positively affecting this measure. However, it should be noted that research indicates approximately 80-90 per cent of high-risk offenders re-offend within a two-year period. The statistics for Saskatchewan should be viewed in this context.

Measure

Baseline / Trend Line Information

Number of individuals participating in the Emergency Management Training Program

Measure Description

The Emergency Management Training Program provides training in the core essentials of an Emergency Management Framework through courses such as the development of an emergency plan, the operation of an emergency operating centre, and the elements of a community evacuation. The increased number of both people trained and the level of training is an indication that municipalities, through their local officials, are increasing their emergency management capabilities.

The target for training each year is 1,800 participants. This figure is a general estimate of the amount of training that would provide an adequate level of emergency management sustainability in communities. This training is ongoing, since there is a high rate of turnover and attrition in communities each year. Since 2004-05, the number of participants has increased significantly toward our target of 1,800.

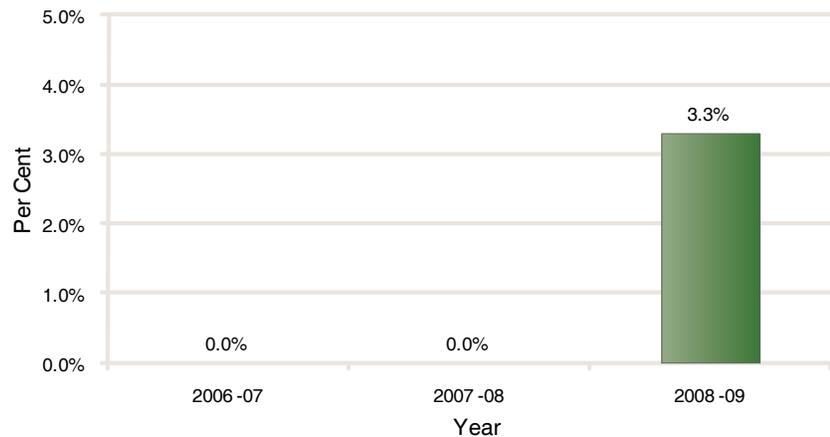

There is a direct relationship between the number of participants and the level of preparedness at the community level. Municipalities that invest in training and development of their emergency management programs are typically better equipped to prepare for and respond to disasters within their community. Local officials and coordinators are able to generally provide a more effective response when required. This may include the activation of an updated Emergency Plan, the opening of a local Emergency Operations Centre (EOC) or the implementation of a communications plan. This enhanced self-reliance results in improved public safety, a reduction in damage to property and critical infrastructure and enhanced protection of the environment.

The Ministry has a moderate level of influence over this measure as it is a demand-driven system. The Ministry can establish targets and provide the opportunity for training, but it is municipalities themselves that decide on the amount of training they wish to invest in.

Measure

Percentage of licensed pressure equipment inspected through Quality Management Systems

Baseline / Trend Line Information

Measure Description

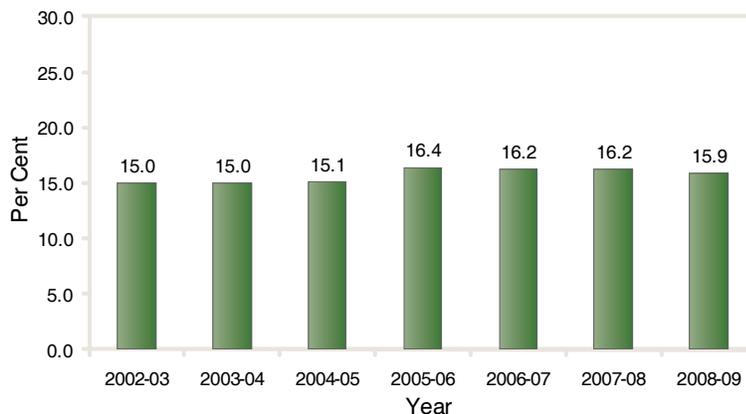

Government inspectors are required to perform periodic inspections of operating boilers and pressure vessels within the province. A satisfactory inspection certificate as a result of the government inspection is required for the owner to maintain a licence for operation. A Quality Management System provides a pressure equipment owner or insurer with the opportunity to establish a documented inspection program and employ qualified inspection personnel in order to perform recognized periodic inspections upon the equipment they own or insure. The documented inspection program covering such topics as measuring and testing equipment, periodic inspections, and training of inspection personnel as well as the actual implementation of the Quality Management System of Inspections falls under government review, registration, licensing, and audit oversight. This measure assesses the administration of a core regulatory component of an effective public safety program.

Since the Quality Management System of Inspection is a new approach by the Ministry, the baseline is zero and it will take time to establish long-term data. Quality Management Systems of Inspection were introduced through legislative changes in the fourth quarter of 2006-07. There were no licensed Quality Management Systems of Inspections prior to that time. For 2008-09, the percentage of total licensed pressure equipment in the province inspected through a Quality Management System was 3.3 per cent. While this represents only two owners, it should be noted that the top 25 owners represent over one-third of the inventory.

Measure

Baseline / Trend Line Information

Percentage of Ministry employees who self-identify as being of First Nations or Métis ancestry

Source: Public Service Commission

Measure Description

Aboriginal people represent approximately 15 per cent of the population in Saskatchewan, but are significantly over-represented in the criminal justice system (between 70-80 per cent of people in custody are of Aboriginal ancestry). Between 2002-03 and 2008-09, the proportion of Ministry staff who self-identified as being of First Nations or Métis ancestry has slightly increased from 15.0 per cent to 15.9 per cent, with some fluctuations in between. Although the percentage declined in 2008-09 from the previous three years, CPSP's First Nations and Métis employee numbers grew by 18 employees during 2008-09. However, since the CPSP total workforce size increased by 50 employees over that period, the percentage of First Nations and Métis employees as a proportion of the total Ministry workforce decreased slightly.

One way of helping to ensure that correctional programs respect the cultural and spiritual needs of First Nations and Métis clients is to have correctional staff who are of First Nations or Métis ancestry. The Ministry has a moderate level of influence over this measure by actively undertaking measures that will increase this percentage.

In 2008-09, the Ministry began to revitalize a strategic direction for diversity including the enhancement of employment equity hiring. Some of the steps the Ministry is taking to increase the proportion of correctional staff who are of First Nations or Métis ancestry include:

- attending career fairs across Saskatchewan, reaching approximately 6,000 students, and community members annually. A high proportion of attendees are of First Nations or Métis ancestry;
- attending career events in First Nations communities to promote future careers in Corrections, Public Safety and Policing;
- designating Aboriginal positions in accordance with the Public Service Commission's Employment Equity policy;
- continuing to develop workplaces that welcome diversity through the delivery of respectful workplace, anti-harassment, and other diversity workshops; and,
- continuing education and awareness provided to CPSP managers through the CPSP workshop, First Nations and Métis Awareness Training.
